

Existential Analysis Cohort to Start in Los Angeles!

We are pleased to announce that Existential Analysis is beginning to form a cohort in United States, starting in Los Angeles.

We are running an Introduction to Existential Analysis (EA) seminar on September 18 -20. There are only a couple of spots left. There will be another Introduction offered in the next few months in LA if you cannot make this September one.

The Introduction to EA course is the "gateway course" for those interested in becoming part of the cohort we hope to start in LA over the next few months. It is designed to be both informal and experiential in order to give you a taste of EA methods and informative so that you can get your questions answered about the EA way. But it is also designed as a course which gives you some basics in EA which are instrumental for yourself and your work, even if you don't intend to undergo the whole training. The format for basic training the LA cohort will likely be 5 days of seminars 3 or 4 times a year. This will allow for those who want to travel from further away to attend.

Below is a link for the recently designed USA Existential Analysis page. This webpage describes the cohort training program for LA and the trainers involved. Feel free to look around on this website
